Middle School Vignettes on Improving Parent-Middle Schooler Communication

Hosted by Jordan and funded by PTAC, Palo Alto PTA Council

April 19, 7-9 pm at Jordan MPR

Have you been worried at the kind of language you almost teen or teen has been using? Feeling frustrated that your gentle reminders are being ignored? Concerned that your child is using bad words not just with their friends but it sometimes shows in conversations with parents, siblings and other family members or gasp even in public?

Dr. Rona Hu will be presenting a vignette on how parents can talk with their child regarding bad words, so that the child will be more receptive to hearing parental input. Dr. Hu has developed this particular vignette based on numerous requests from middle school parents. She and her team will also present a series of other middle school focused vignettes that focus on difficult interactions between parents and their middle schoolers, play them the default way, take questions in character from the audience, then play them a different way, with different consequences. This models for the audience how subtle differences in communication can have a major impact.

Join us at 7PM on April 19 at the Jordan MPR. The evening will end with the audience having the opportunity to breakaway into focused groups with Dr. Hu and her team who are all either students or faculty at Stanford dept. of psychiatry. Translation will be provided in Spanish and Mandarin. There will light snacks and beverages provided during the focus sessions. Space is limited and the tickets are going fast!

Please sign up at: <https://www.eventbrite.com/e/parent-ed-improving-conversations-between-you-and-your-middle-schooler-tickets-32872952887>
